Introduction

- OAIS model
 - Wide acceptance
 - Design reference model for an archival system
 - Without detailed activity requirements

- Preservation Planning
 - Different strategies
 - Different tools for each strategy
 - Different parameters for each tool
 - Which solution to select to meet preservation requirements

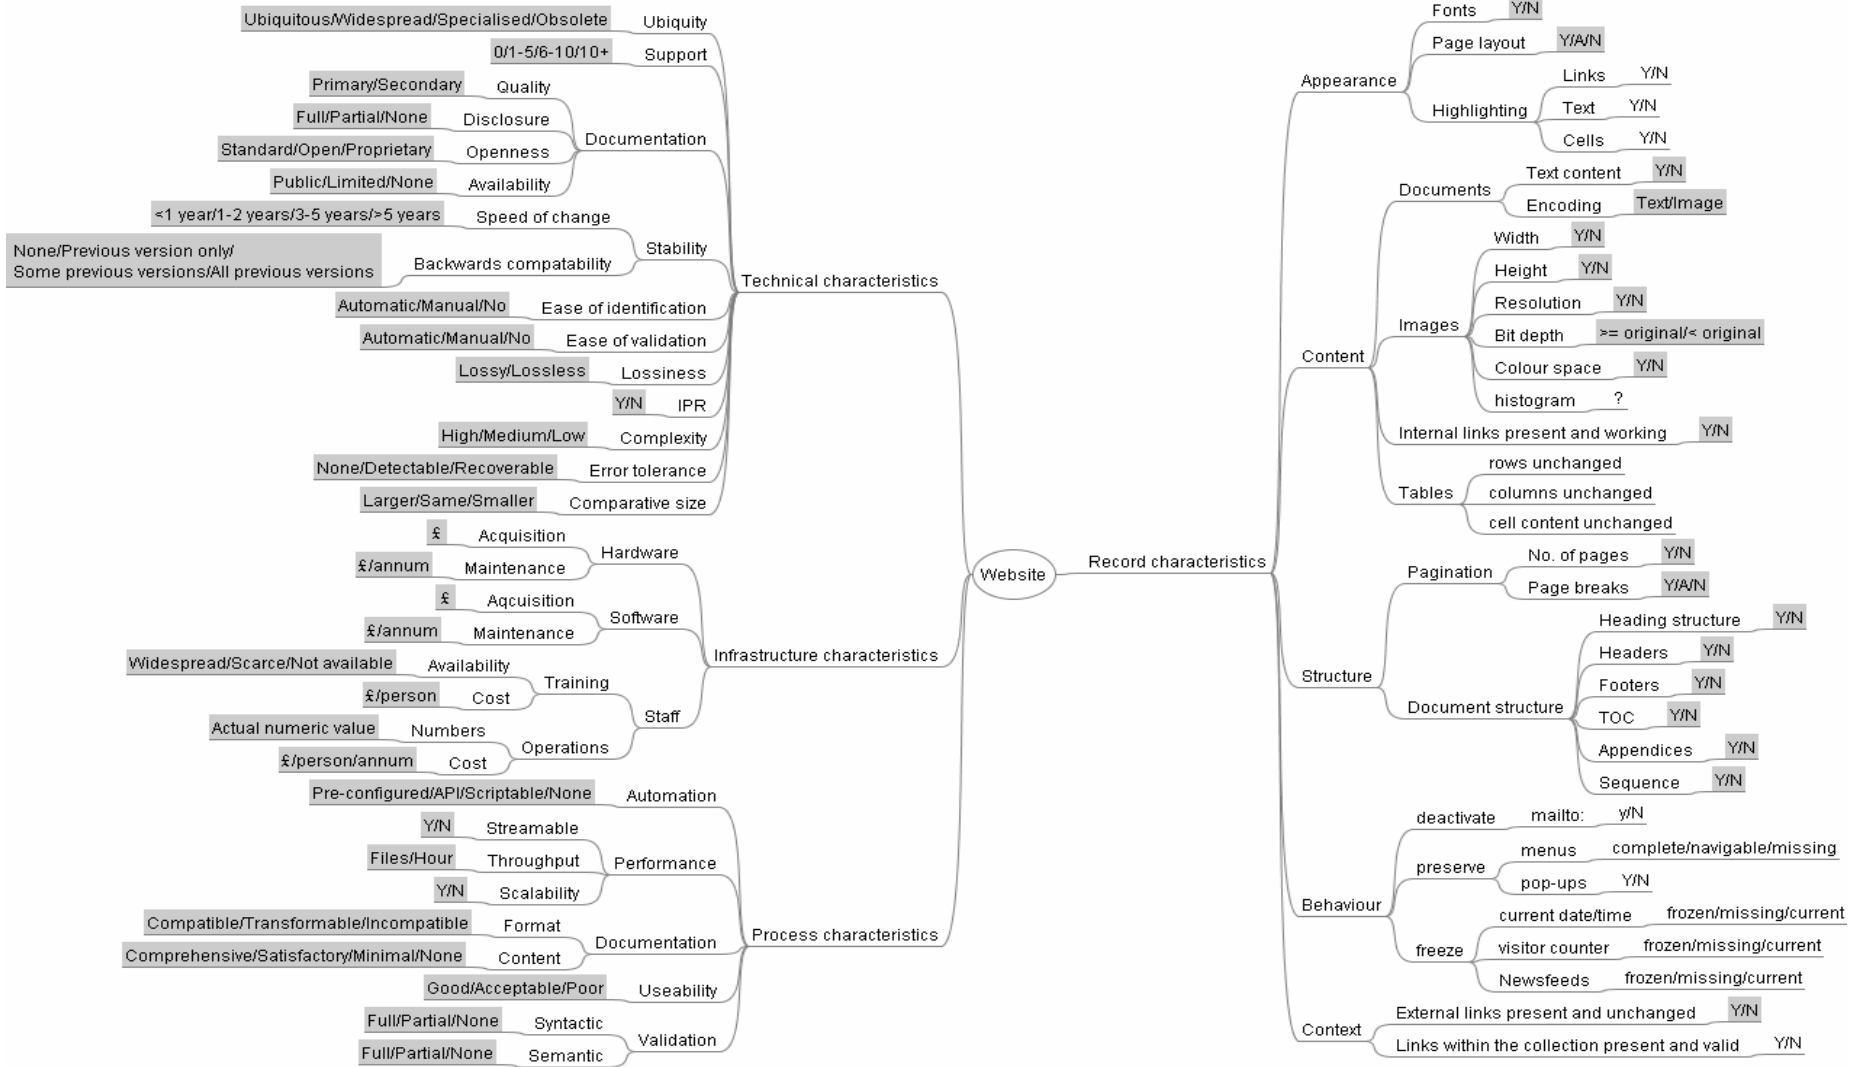

Preservation Planning approach

- Definition of specific requirements and goals
- Evaluation by experiments on sample records from the collection
- Numeric results based on the Utility Analysis
- Comparison of different preservation strategies

Alerts that can trigger a preservation planning activity

- New Format Alert (NFA)
 - New format is accepted in the archive
 - New preservation strategy has to be identified and evaluated
 - Raised by:
 - Monitor Designated Community
 - Changes in Designated Community
 - Frequent unanticipated submissions

For example use of a new file format

Alerts that can trigger a preservation planning activity

- New Requirement Alert (NRA)
 - Changes and development in technology
 - Change in preservation requirements
 - Re-evaluation of implemented preservation strategies

 - Raised by
 - Monitor Designated Community
 - Monitor Technology

Alerts that can trigger a preservation planning activity

- Revision Alert (REA)
 - Periodical reviews help to improve and further develop implemented preservation strategies
 - 3 types:
 - Periodical review
 - Review depending on operational statistics
 - Review for new developments

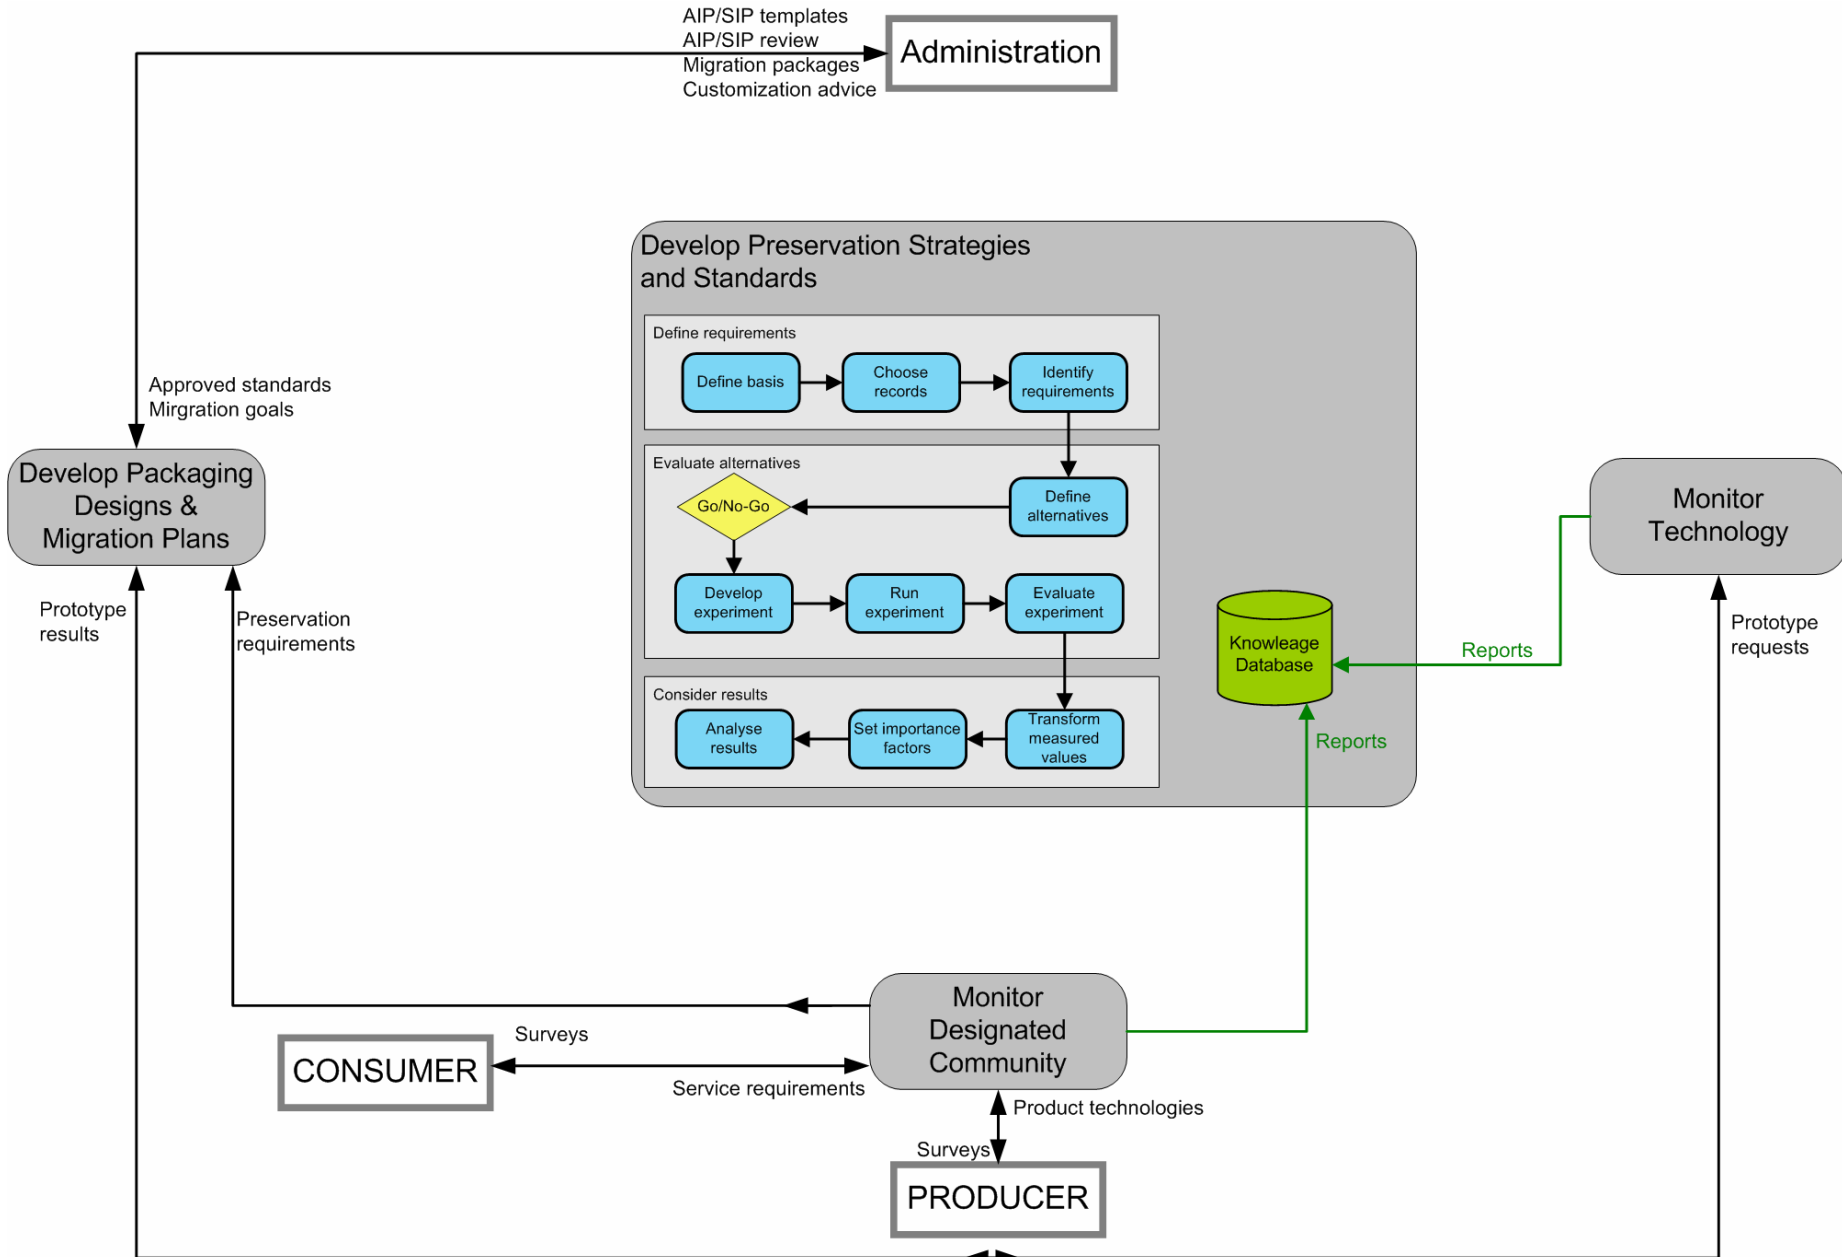

Revision Alert

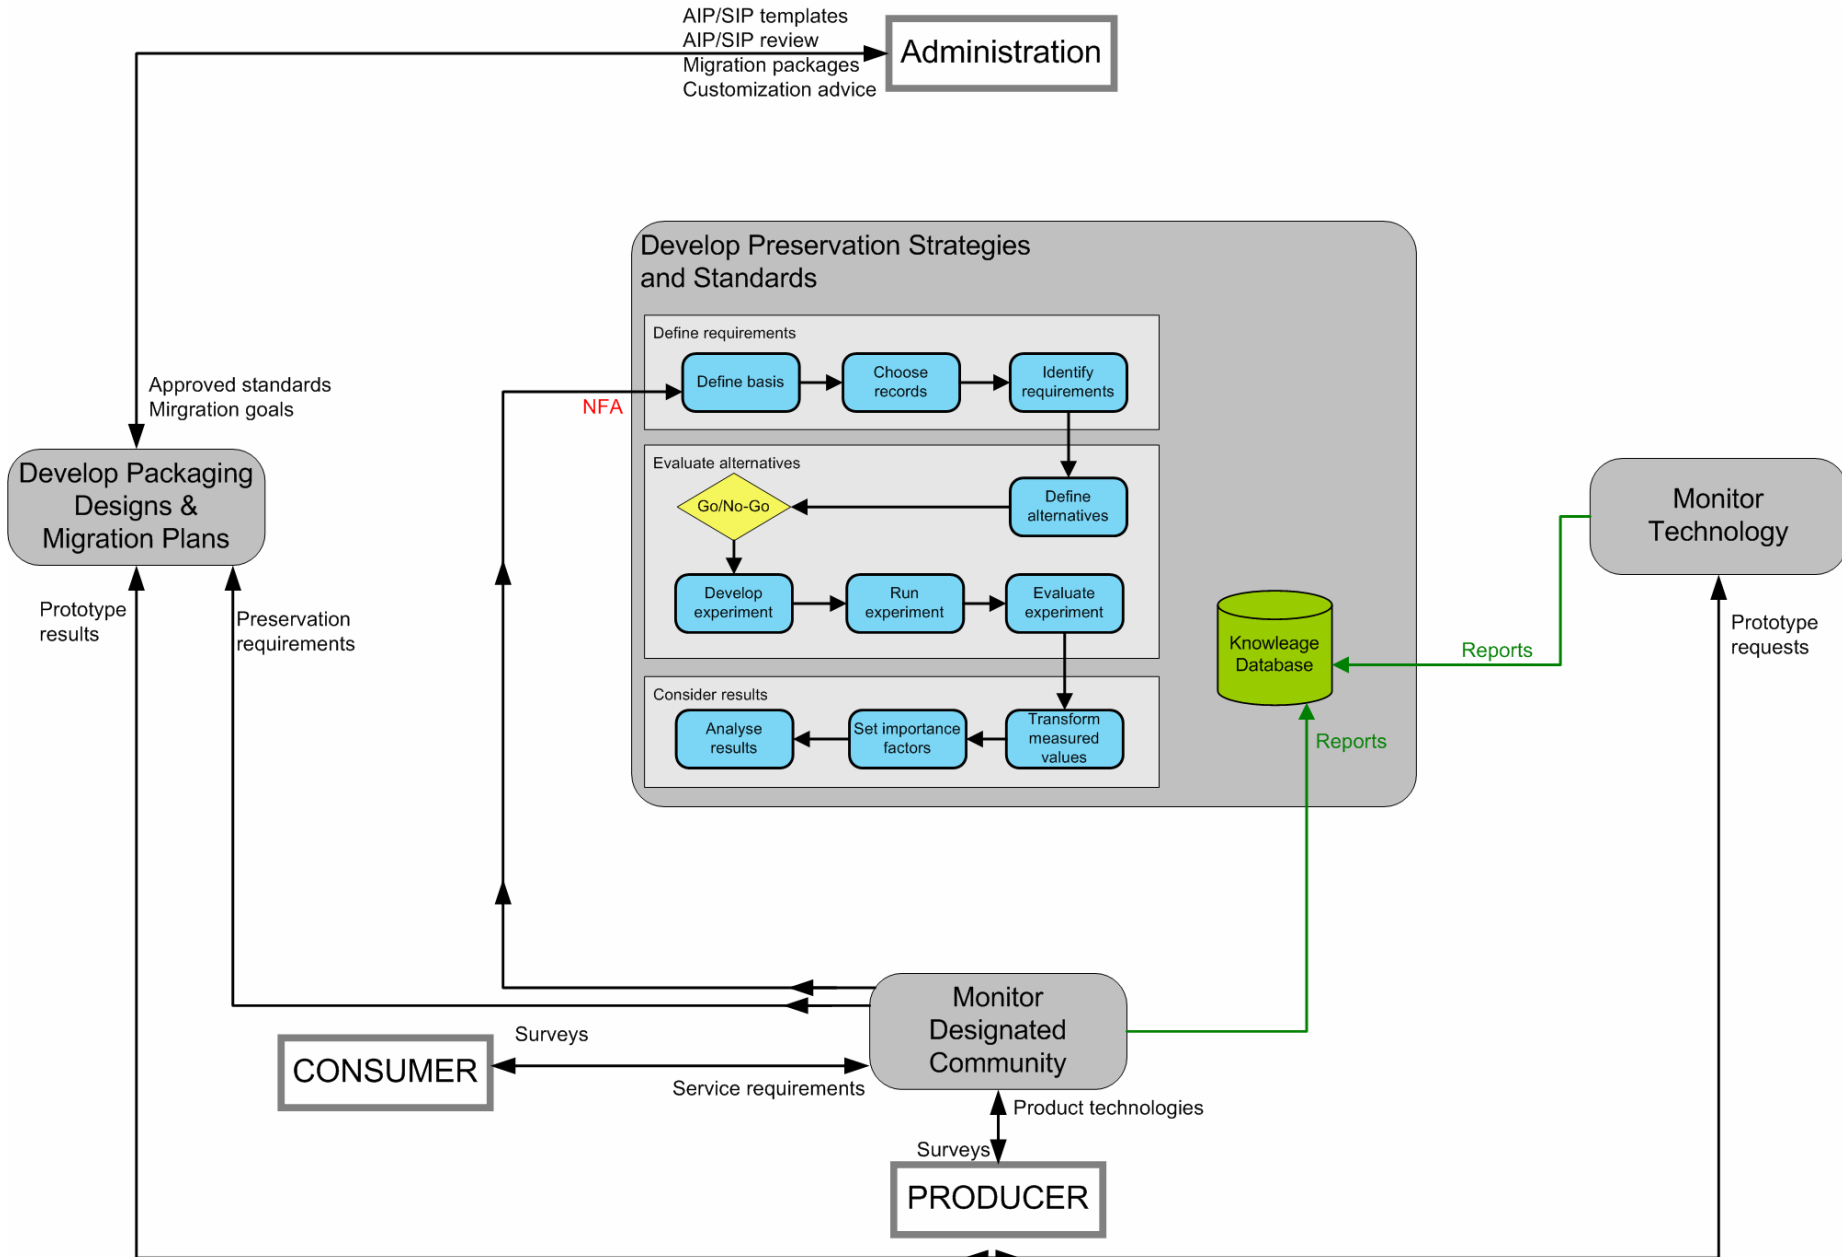

- 3 Alerts
 - New File Format Alert
 - New Requirement Alert
 - Revision Alert

- 3 Different Preservation Planning activities
 - Evaluation of new Preservation Strategy for a new format
 - Revision of implemented Preservation Strategies for new requirements
 - Review of implemented Preservation Strategies

Revision Alert

- More detailed specification of the OAIS Preservation Planning functionality
- We identified
 - 3 Alerts
 - New Format Alert (NFA)
 - New Requirements Alert (NRA)
 - Revision Alert (REA)
 - Information flow for Preservation Planning activities
 - Effects of New Preservation Strategies on other entities
